BEST OF THE BEST 2013

The Best "Best Of" Ever

Dan's Papers has always celebrated the best of the Hamptons and the North Fork, and nowhere is that celebration bigger than in our annual Dan's Best of the Best competition.

The 2013 Dan's Best of the Best, presented by Bridgehampton National Bank (BNB), drew a record-breaking number of voters sharing their picks for who should be honored among the best businesses, personalities and events on the East End—more than 400,000 votes were cast as the 1,500-plus nominees vied for recognition among the vast number of Dan's Papers readers telling us who they think are tops.

"This is the first year that BNB has been part of Dan's BOTB. And it makes perfect sense," says Kevin O'Connor, President and CEO, Bridgehampton National Bank. "The businesses and service providers in our community make the East End special and economically vibrant. It's obvious that each business and individual that participates takes great pride in what they do—they want to be the best. So, as a community bank that supports them and takes great pride in what we do, it's just a perfect partnership.

"Being recognized for doing not just a good job, but a great job, is very gratifying, and the winners of Dan's BOTB not only are being acknowledged for their efforts, but they are being celebrated," O'Connor adds.

"And certainly going through the year with the BOTB designation is a marketing benefit. BOTB provides a mechanism to tell the world that when it comes to your category of business or service, you are the best."

This year we have awarded Platinum, Gold and Silver level winners to the top three vote-getters in each category on both the North Fork and the South Fork. With voting as robust as it was in 2013, some races were so close that we had to call a few ties. And, in keeping with tradition, all winners are invited to attend the annual awards celebration—held this year at Suffolk Theater in Riverhead.

The annual Dan's Best of the Best awards party is always a night to remember, an evening of live music, congratulations and, of course, the presentation of the coveted Best of the Best award certificates. Winners can proudly display their Dan's Best of the Best emblem for the world to see in their windows, on their walls, in advertisements or wherever they decide—and we've seen some very creative ideas out there.

But the big night doesn't end there. Following the revelry of the awards party will be the inaugural Dan's Papers "The BEST" Concert, featuring perennial East End favorites Nancy Atlas and the Nancy Atlas Project and Gene Casey & the Lone Sharks rocking at Suffolk Theater. In addition to seeing them performing with their own bands that night, fans are looking forward to Atlas and Casey teaming up for a few songs.

"It depends entirely on whether Nancy's babysitter can work overtime," Casey jokes. I would love to." The feeling is mutual with his fellow headliner. "We are already rubbing our rock-and-roll hands together to cook up something special," Atlas promises.

We are pleased and proud to present you with those businesses, people and experiences that rose to the very top of their categories—these are YOUR Best of the Best choices for 2013!

The full list of winners begins on page 29.

Tickets for Dan's Papers "The BEST" Concert and Dance Party on Friday, November 15, at 8:30 p.m. at Suffolk Theater are $25 for general admission, available now at DansBOTB.com.

Rider miles this past week: 78,421

DOWN IN THE TUBE

Henry Hildreth was seen carrying a bolt of green fabric on the Hampton Subway heading eastbound between East Hampton and the new stop at Pantigo. He said the customer in their East Hampton store had changed their mind about their sofa color. Matthew Broderick and Sarah Jessica Parker were seen on the Amagansett platform westbound, but our spotter did not see whether they got on the express or local. Was that Lady Gaga performing for cash on the Water Mill platform?

THANKSGIVING TURKEY GIVEAWAY

Frozen turkeys will be given away on the Southampton westbound platform next Wednesday to every tenth person coming through the turnstiles, whether they like it or not. So everybody please be ready. And thank you to the Sip 'n Soda on Hampton Road for letting us use their freezers.

NOMINEE ARRESTED

On election night, Tom Harris from the Freedom Party was arrested for campaigning on the subway platform in Quogue. We regretted that he was unable to attend the party function that night at the East Quogue Bar and Grille, which the Freedom Party had commandeered to watch the election returns, but those are the rules—no campaigning or there is an automatic 48 hours in jail. Sorry about that. He lost anyway, by a whisker as it turned out, so maybe it was good he was not there.

UPHOLSTERY BY MISTAKE

After the subway shut down for the night at 2 a.m. on Tuesday and all the cars out on the system retreated to the Montauk Yards for maintenance, a crew from the Max Avignon Upholstery firm showed up at the yards with a work order and proceeded to start putting red tartan upholstery on all the cars. They had completed four cars in our 36-car fleet before it was found they had been out there in error. So they were sent home, and it will all be sorted out later. In the meantime, count yourself lucky if you get one of the cars that had its plastic seats covered with the soft colorful upholstery. It'll be soft on your bottom. The odds are one in nine you will get one. Enjoy.

LOOKING FOR SANTA CLAUS

Hampton Subway is looking to hire 14 "temps" for the morning rush hour every day between December 10 and Christmas Eve. The pay is $10 an hour, the hours are 7 a.m. to noon, and if that's you, you'll be in full Santa Claus uniform standing by a tripod with a bronze pot hanging from it, ringing a bell and hoping to raise money for a lucky employee of the subway system who is chosen by lottery for a free one-week vacation in Nome, Alaska. It's teamwork like this that makes the Hampton Subway what it is today.

GOLDEN SLIPPER

A beautiful girl with blond hair dressed up as Cinderella ran to get on a subway train in our Westhampton Beach station on Halloween night and got in just before the sliding doors closed, but as she got on board and the train pulled out, she left on the platform a bright red sparkly slipper with a beautiful diamond embedded in the toe. Apparently it slipped off. Anyone wishing to claim it should call Hampton Subway's main office in Hampton Bays. You will be asked to tell us the size and which foot it's for, and if you get it, it's yours.

COMMISSIONER ASPINALL'S MESSAGE

The Commissioner did not submit a message this week. Nobody has seen him. 🐼

POLICE BLOTTER

SUMMER'S BURGLARS TAKE THE FALL

If Summer 2013 brought news of house-breaking and burglary, Fall 2013 is bringing news of dogged police work and arrests. Three weeks after Sag Harbor's thirsty St. Pauli Girl marauder finally felt the cold blast of justice comes word that another serial summer suspect has been apprehended. A 35-year-old East Hampton man, accused of stealing in excess of $126,000 in jewelry, cash and prescription drugs from homes in East Hampton, Southampton and Sag Harbor over the summer, was arrested Thursday while driving on Rt. 114. While it's not clear that he has offered a full confession, he did admit to robbing houses in order to obtain money to feed his heroin addiction.

COPPERS COLLAR COPPER CLIPPER

Another case of summer's flowering of crime meeting the frosty wind of punishment, this time from exotic Remsenburg. Regular readers will doubtless recall the string of copper thefts that struck Remsenburg over the summer—thefts that prompted many to wonder, "Where is Remsenburg?" Well, it seems a young Mastic man not only knew how to get to Remsenburg, but also knew how to extract the valuable copper piping from central air-conditioning units, a skill he put to use beginning in April and continuing throughout the summer. Police finally closed in last week, catching the perp "red handed" in the act of stealing copper from yet another Remsenburg residence, and in possession of burglary tools. Ah, well, summer can't last forever.

A MAC ATTACK FOR THE MAN IN BLACK

Not Johnny Cash, but a black-clad Flanders man was arrested for trying to stick up the Riverside McDonald's Sunday morning. The man, wearing a black cowboy hat and vest, approached the drive-thru window and threatened the employee with violence if he didn't give up money and hamburgers. The man either didn't know enough to ask for fries, or thought they would slow his escape. The employee called the police, and the perpetrator is now being held at the Suffolk County Jail in lieu of $50,000 bail. The burgers at the jail are probably decent.

"CHANGE" OF THE SEASON

Late Tuesday night, police were directed by an anonymous tip to Mary's Dress Shop on Shelter Island where they found Old Man McGumbus, 103, WWII vet and miniature camera enthusiast, in the ladies changing room with an array of tools. While McGumbus put up what was described as a "violent struggle," during which he brandished his dentures at a detective, police disassembled an elaborate camera mechanism that McGumbus had installed. "What's wrong with being a photographer?" protested McGumbus.

A view of a beach you may not have noticed before in Sag Harbor

Surprise!

Accessing That Newly Noticed Beach in Downtown Sag Harbor

BY DAN RATTINER

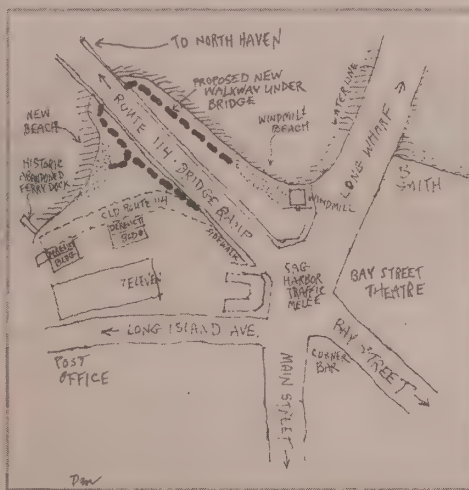

There's a plan afoot in Sag Harbor to open a second beach in the middle of town. The first beach, Windmill Beach, was created about 20 years ago when the Village Trustees decided to put a little sand next to the town windmill at the foot of Long Wharf. It's a great place to lay out a blanket, put up an umbrella and look out at the bay in the middle of a hot summer's day. In the back, several park benches sit on a lawn looking out. With a little planning, it's possible to arrange a morning of shopping and sightseeing, a picnic lunch at the beach, and then more of the same in the afternoon.

Now it turns out there's a way to greatly expand on this wonderful little beach project. It involves very little expense, just the building of a broad new 150-yard walkway. It would lead to a little known and almost secret beach, which, for those few who know about it, is simply the best place to watch the sunset in town.

After hearing about this, because of a mention of it at a Village Board meeting, I took a walk to try to find this beach. I started at Windmill Beach and headed west, along the embankment that begins the rise up of the Lance Corporal Jordan C. Haerter Veterans Memorial Bridge to North Haven. The bridge is to your left, a lawn and the beach are to your right, with the bay beyond. When the bridge is high enough, instead of finding a dead end where the water goes under it, you find you can turn left and walk on a flat gravel area that takes you UNDER the bridge. Coming out the other side, to your left, there you are, at the arc of a beach just about the same size as Windmill Beach.

Whether this is a manmade beach like Windmill Beach or not, I don't know. What I do know is this. Standing on this beach, with your back to the land, it's very clear why nobody knows about it. At your back are the backs of (Cont'd on next page) three commercial buildings, two of which are abandoned, as I show on the map on the previous page, and the third a building that houses the 7-Eleven facing onto a parking lot adjacent to Long Island Avenue. Who knew this was behind these buildings?

I had wondered if, walking the 100 yards or so to this beach, you had to return the same way you had come. But, having been told there's a path you can take amidst the backs of the three buildings that lead you out to Long Island Avenue, I went to find it. I did find it, though I think I crossed private property.

But then I found something else. Just behind the foliage at the back of this hidden beach and running parallel to it, is an old concrete road. If you take it one way, it dead-ends at an abandoned dock there. But if you take it the other way, it ends nowhere. You are facing the ramp of the bridge. But it doesn't reach it. What is this?

I looked around. If I walked past where it ends, I crossed a lawn that led to the pedestrian sidewalk of the bridge that would lead me down to the traffic melee and the curving building that houses Yummylicious. I would be back in the center of town.

I wondered about that old road. Who owned it, and who owned the beach, anyway? I went to the Village Municipal Building and looked at maps of the village lots. Here is what I found.

Every place I walked, other than when I walked on what I thought was private property, is owned by taxpayers. The beach is owned by Sag Harbor Village. The parcel under the bridge is part of the bridge and is owned by the State of New York. The sidewalk leading down to Main Street and Long Island Avenue is Village and State owned.

Most interesting of all is that small concrete road parallel to the back of the beach that seems to go nowhere.

Guess what? How did you get to North Haven before there was a bridge? Why, you took a ferry. That old piece of concrete road had been the road to the ferry dock. It's listed as such on the official maps. It must have been built hundreds of years ago. You came by horse down Route 114 from East Hampton, and just past where the roads come together at Long Wharf, 114 continues on but curves off to the left to end by that old abandoned dock and building still barely standing. What were they? That was where you and your horse and wagon waited until the ferry came back from North Haven "island." You paid the ferryman, perhaps in shillings, and he took you to North Haven. When you were done, he took you back.

I owed this little walk to the imagination of landscape architect Edmund Hollander, who 15 years ago envisioned linking these two beaches with a walkway under the bridge. In the last few months, that project has re-emerged as a proposal to the Village by Bruce Tait, chairman of the Sag Harbor Village Harbor Committee. Tait believes that as a waterfront project in a small village, it would have a great chance to get State and Federal funding, and I agree.

For the cost of a walkway, which the Village could easily bear without extra funding, this project opens up all sorts of other possibilities.

1. The walkway connects two beaches a short walk from one another. It's a lovely stroll, mirroring the one down Long Wharf and back.

2. It creates a way for pedestrian traffic to get from Main Street to Long Wharf and Windmill Beach without having to cross the street.

3. It creates what could be called a circular Whaler's Walk, similar to Boston's Freedom Trail. It starts at the old Fort Monument on High Street (from the War of 1812, where the cannon was), past the three churches, including the Old Whalers' Church, down the hill to the John Jermain Memorial Library, across and past the Whaling & Historical Museum and the Customs House, down Garden Street, right onto Long Island Avenue, left at Main Street, along the sidewalk to the New Beach and the old ferryboat dock, under the bridge to Windmill Beach, Main Street and Long Wharf.

The commercial property where the two derelict buildings are today would now face out onto the beach there, the old Route 114 and the waterfront. This property is now owned by a group that presented a development plan this summer. This group would undoubtedly benefit. A waterfront commercial area much perhaps like Gosman's could be developed there for sure. But that would be up to the Village Trustees to decide how and if.

Anyway, I'm for all of this. It would expand Sag Harbor right in the middle of town, where expansion belongs. And it would add to the excitement and history that makes Sag Harbor so special. 🍌

Banksy

The World Trade Center, Mayor Bloomberg & Ronald McDonald

BY DAN RATTINER

Banksy, this amazing graffiti artist from Britain, has been in New York City doing his thing this past month. I would agree that it's not nice to describe any graffiti artist as "amazing," considering how they deface things, but Banksy only fits that definition because of the definition. A graffiti artist is someone who goes out at night painting on walls without permission. Thing is, what he paints is often hilarious or great art. Here's a few of his accomplishments.

In June 2007, he arranged a group of portable toilets in a field in England as an exact replica of Stonehenge. He stencil-painted a portrait of Charles Manson in a prison suit, hitchhiking and holding a cardboard sign reading "Anywhere." In Bristol, England, he painted a naked man hanging onto the sill of a painted window in a blank wall. A man and woman are looking out the window trying to see where he went. This blank wall was part of a sexual health clinic at the time the work was completed. In 2008, he painted an old man in a rocking chair under a pre-existing NO LOITERING sign on a building in New Orleans. He works in Los Angeles, the West Bank, Chicago, Miami. He is never seen. And he issues statements on his website.

In many cities the authorities leave up what he paints as works of art. (The 2010 film Exit Through the Gift Shop chronicled Banksy's works and was nominated for an Oscar for Best Documentary.) In other cities, the bureaucrats order the paintings scrubbed off. It almost always results in people arguing. Mayor Bloomberg reportedly is not a Banksy fan.

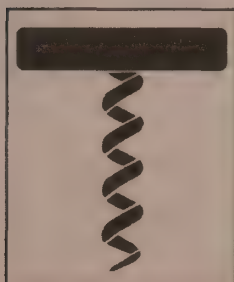

Here in New York, he has stenciled silhouettes of proper fairytale people on the sides of buildings. He secretly hung one of his paintings in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, another in the Brooklyn Museum and another in the Museum of Modern Art. He constructed a fiberglass sculpture of a boy who is shining the oversized shoes of a real statue of Ronald McDonald that stands in front of a McDonald's in Queens. And then, night after night, the boy was moved to shine shoes of other McDonald's statues elsewhere in the city.

The auction houses are crazy about works by Banksy. They sell them, when they can be removed, for $30,000 and $40,000 each. Five years ago a couple put their $1,500 trailer up for auction for approximately $800,000 because Banksy had painted the side of it. At one auction, an item went up for sale that said "Banksy painting with building attached."

On October 12 of this year, Banksy set up a table on the sidewalk of Fifth Avenue near Central Park. For sale on the table were 25 spray-painted, signed canvases. The day before, Banksy announced this special one-day "sale" where each signed painting would go for $60. An old man manned the (Cont'd on next page) cash register. The tourists walked by, and only eight pieces were sold for the bargain price—and some were haggled down—according to reporters who covered the event.

My favorite Banksy prank occurred on October 27. A few days before, apparently, he had submitted an op-ed piece to The New York Times, which had been rejected. So he sent it out to the media, in the Times' unique type style.

Comments about it appeared in magazines and newspapers in Sydney, London, Toronto, on The Huffington Post, etc. HuffPo ran a poll: Do you believe with Banksy or disagree with Banksy? The results, so far, were 49.9% yes and 50.1% no, last time I looked.

Banksy had written what he thought about the architecture of Manhattan's brand new giant, world-class skyscraper, One World Trade Center. He called it a disaster and said something had to be done about it.

"It reminds you of a really tall kid at a party," he wrote, "shifting his shoulders trying not to stand out from the crowd. It's the first time I've ever seen a shy skyscraper.... It looks like something they would build in Canada."

Thing is, that's how I feel about it, too. I remember when it was being built, how fat and chunky it looked. But I thought, oh, the great needle will go on top, and that will make it look great. It was supposed to be a sort of pyramid needle. But then at the last minute, they changed the plan. It went up straight, a needle very much too small. And I thought, oh, great. Well, I thought, I'm not going to say anything.

"It reminds you of a really tall kid at a party trying not to stand out from the crowd. It looks like something they would build in Canada."

"Remarkably for such a tall structure One World Trade lacks any self-confidence," Banksy wrote. It looks like it never wanted to be built in the first place."

You know, it took eight years for the architects to decide what it would look like. It was always going to be 1776 feet high, in honor of The Declaration of Independence. You can knock us down but we get up taller and stronger. Some of the early drawings showed a soaring building leaping into the sky. It was great! But then that architect got dumped, and his plan went away. Then another plan got dumped because it didn't meet anti-terrorist specifications. And now, finally, here it is, a building that looks like it was, and probably did, get built by a committee, I'm sorry to say. It does indeed look to me like a very tall fat kid trying not to stand out.

"You really need to put up a better building in front of it right away," Banksy concluded.

Oh, Banksy. Oh, New York. At one time, the rocket ship Chrysler Building was the tallest in the world. Then the powerful, all-business Empire State Building held that title. Then we let it slip away.

Other taller buildings were either graceful or awful. Certainly Taipei 101, built in Taiwan at 1,667 feet, is architecturally uninspiring. The Petronas Towers, in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, at 1,483 feet, are pretty weird. But the International Commerce Center in Hong Kong at 1,588 feet is a great beauty.

Today, the tallest building in the world is the Burj Khalifa, 2,722 feet high, in the main business district of Dubai. It's an architectural masterpiece (designed by an American architectural firm). An interesting side story about it is that it was supposed to be named the Burj Dubai, and it was called that until the money ran out in mid-construction. A neighboring emirate bailed Dubai out, but the condition was they had to name it after the emir. The second-tallest building today is the Shanghai Tower in China at 2,073 feet. The Mecca Royal Hotel Clock Tower in Saudi Arabia, at 1,972 feet, which looks, frankly, like the Tower of London on steroids, is third. And fourth now is our very own One World Trade Center in New York, a shy building, but okay. We bill it as "The Tallest Building in the Western World."

And I think, in praise of Banksy, we should add "...including Canada."

I'd like to invite Banksy to the Hamptons. My idea is that on one night, he have a team of assistants go out and put bronze plaques on all the street benches on the Main Streets that do not have plaques. Each one could be a love note to a celebrity. We love you Billy Joel. We love you Madonna. We love you Russell Simmons. We love you Mel Brooks. We love you Jon Stewart. We love you Alec Baldwin.

Without you, we'd be nothing. 🐾

This Week's Cover Artist: Randolph Smith

BY MARION WOLBERG-WEISS

HONORING THE ARTIST

Cover artist Randy Smith is at home wherever he paints, and "home" can mean any place from Charlottesville, Virginia to the Hamptons and New York City. Or beyond. His art also finds a home wherever Smith happens to be, his buildings and iconic locations fitting in perfectly no matter what the environment. It stands to reason that Smith feels comfortable as well, regardless of the setting, weather or ambience.

Regarding ambience, Smith manages to make the various moods he evokes a part of his signature style, a kind of Neo-Impressionism that's gentle, engaging and sometimes fantasy-like. Consider his recent images of Charlottesville's Paramount Theater and our cover of Riverhead's Suffolk Theater, both movie palaces done in the Art Deco style. The structures have similar elements: a worm's eye view; bright colors illuminating the buildings and an atmosphere that gives the venues a star-like quality. Smith's New York subject matter also mirrors such an ambience with his brownstones, Rockefeller Center's ice rink and Central Park. Even Hamptons beach scenes repeat the same view and fantasy-evoking setting. Smith's images are playful and life-affirming, with forms that tilt, alive with "soft-edge" (non-geometrical) designs.

You are an artist who seems at home in a lot of places. What's your connection to the Hamptons?

I spend one-half the time here and half the time in Charlottesville. Recently, I painted the Sag Harbor Whaling & Historical Museum, and it [the painting] will be up for auction.

What other local subjects are you planning to paint?

The John Jermain Library in Sag Harbor, when it's finished being restored. And the Old Whalers' Church.

How would you characterize how you work and your mission?

I'm a plein air painter and a preservationist. The plein air group here inspired me to donate work for fundraising purposes. I want to paint the garage owned by Click and Clack, who do the Car Talk radio show on National Public Radio, as a fundraising project. I really want to pursue more fundraising activities.

You were very much involved with music from Appalachia.

Yes, I had a band, the Smith Family Band, with my children when they were 5 to 15 years old.

What's your connection now with this kind of music?

I want to paint the Floyd Country store, the

Your other interests are historical as well, like your participation in the James River Batteau Festival in Virginia.

I do a painting once a year featuring the festivities, and we float down the river. Last year, it was pouring rain, and a rock punched a hole in the boat. We had to be rescued. I lovingly call the boat The Virginia Leaker.

Your other interest is yoga, and you take yoga classes when you come to Bridgehampton. How does it help your art?

Yoga helps me focus more. When I'm here, I take yoga, go to the beach, and all of a sudden I have created a painting.

How has your painting changed?

The paintings are coming slower, but I still paint a few works at one time. I'm doing them more in detail.

What are your plans when you come back here next time?

Maybe go to New York and finish a painting of the Plaza Hotel. And paint the Brooklyn Bridge from the top of the building Frank Gehry designed. It's hard to get permission. Although I did get to paint in Bryant Park because I met the CEO, and he said I could stay.

NEWS BRIEFS

COMPILED BY KELLY LAFFEY

Goat on a Boat Returns

SAG HARBOR: After two months of repairs following a destructive flood, Goat on a Boat Puppet Theatre in Sag Harbor has reopened with a new schedule of shows.

A serious "rain event" on September 3 flooded Goat on a Boat, ruining the theater's floors, carpeting and curtains, but owner Liz Joyce reports that her puppets, lights and sound were spared. She has since replaced the floors and other damaged items, and is ready for business. The Goat on a Boat Winter Series 2013-2014 includes a full run of quality shows and weekly events, including a Puppet Play Group for ages 3 and under every Monday at 9:30 a.m., Tot Art sessions for ages 2-4 at 10:45 a.m. on Mondays, and the Goat on a Boat Puppet Club, for ages 4-6, on Mondays at 3:30 p.m. Puppet shows are scheduled for two performances every Saturday.

Cedar Island Lighthouse Restoration Project Begins

Cedar Point light, with the lantern still intact.

EAST HAMPTON:

The first phase of the Cedar Island Lighthouse restoration project has begun. Last Thursday, the deteriorating lantern was removed, and it will be taken to the Sag Harbor Yacht Club to be restored.

Michael Leahy, the Chairman of the Restoration Committee, spoke to Dan's Papers from the Cedar Point Lighthouse last Thursday morning, as the lantern was being loaded onto a landing craft to begin the journey to Long Wharf. The lantern refurbishment project will likely be completed by Spring 2014.

The Cedar Island Lighthouse first served as a guide for whaling ships entering Sag Harbor in 1839, and the current structure was built in 1868. It was decommissioned in 1934 and is now a park of Suffolk County's Cedar Point Park. The lighthouse has largely fallen into disrepair since its closing, a victim of both vandalism and a 1974 fire that gutted the inside.

Hampton Coffee Opens at SUNY Stony Brook

STONY BROOK: Has Hampton Coffee Company been drinking its own espresso? The celebrated South Fork staple, which opened a Coffee Experience store in Southampton this summer, has now opened an espresso bar at SUNY Stony Brook. The new location is run by students and overseen by the university's Faculty Student Association and HCC managers and the café is located inside the new West Side Dining building. The espresso bar features Hampton Coffee Company's full menu of espresso beverages, hand-roasted coffee and homemade gelato and bakery items. This is the first licensee location for the 19-year-old family-owned coffee company. "We are so proud to have been chosen by Stony Brook University to be their local coffee company," said HCC co-owner Jason Belkin.
